

GENE L. BRAZELL COMMUNITY ROLE MODEL AWARD

The Gene L. Brazell Community Role Model Award, first conferred in 2004, honors a woman who works tirelessly in the community to better the lives of others, supports the work of Henry Ford College, and is an exemplary role model for women. Each year, the Women's Recognition Luncheon Committee selects the winner from the names of women who have inspired others throughout the year.

WOMEN'S RECOGNITION AWARD

The Women's Recognition Award has been conferred annually since 1983, when the first winner was Gene L. Brazell. The nominee must have some identifiable connection with college life at Henry Ford College. She must be involved in community, professional or student organizations and be working to improve the lives of women. A selection committee chooses the winner from those nominated by Henry Ford College faculty and staff members.
